

APPOINTMENT RELEASE

Sydney 4th February 2009:

Wholesale voice and Internet provider Vocus is delighted to announce the appointment of Trevor Harris as General Manager - Voice in charge of building and growing Vocus' Voice products.

Trevor's telecommunications experience started at Telecom Australia, where he worked in various technical roles encompassing training, transmission and RF Design. He then furthered his professional experience at AAP Reuters as Senior Engineer for Data and Transmission in the mid 1980s. Following that, he joined AAPT as Network Operations Manager in 1990 and when he left in 2000, he was the Director of Strategic Technology.

In his 10 years at AAPT, he oversaw the implementation of a national facilities based voice network, a national data transmission network and importantly the introduction of competitive voice & data services into the Australian marketplace.

Trevor then moved to Telecorp as CTO during their initial 2 years and more lately was with Comindico/Soul (Soul Pattinson Telecommunications), where he was responsible for the introduction of new generation voice services to an existing data provider.

His extraordinary career includes directly managing multi million dollar negotiations with all major vendors such as Siemens, DSC, Marconi, Cisco, Alcatel, Ericsson, Nortel, Stratacom, GDC and Nokia. His previous positions have allowed him to play key roles in business strategy while also being part of regulatory and carrier negotiations.

"I've always enjoyed the challenges in smaller and more focused environments", commented Trevor. "I believe Vocus has some great opportunities and importantly can move quickly to meet them. I'm hoping to help them in that challenge".

As General Manager – Voice, Trevor's main focus is on expanding Vocus' Voice products and business by leveraging the ever increasing reach of the Vocus Network in the 3 markets that the company operates in – Australia, New Zealand and the United States.
